Untold Story of Postman CEO

From Basti to San Francisco: The untold story of Postman CEO who built a $2B startup

When he started out with Postman, Abhinav was often told by people they could do the things it was doing over a weekend or in a month. He didn't disagree with them but believed that staying true to the project and taking the "tough calls" that were needed were key in building a sustainable product.

SWOT Analysis

Strengths

- Company and industry knowledge
- Personal connections
- Leadership and communication skills
- Management accounting and controls
- Strategy planning
- Risk management

Weaknesses

- Tendency to be too pessimistic
- Can't work long hours due to family commitments
- Terrible at project management
- Uncomfortable with a rapid rate of change
- Tend to end up in political battles that damage both sides i.e. lose-lose

Opportunities

- Attend conferences and network to learn about new technologies, methods and approaches.
- Embrace change and empower young talent to remain relevant.
- Sell the value of talents such as management accounting, strategy planning and risk management.
- Leverage personal connections to be an agent of change.

Threats

- Pace of technology change
- Ageism: perception that youth are more creative
- Office politics such as adversaries who gain power
- Ambitious employees who work long hours are interested in my role.
- Several members of my team aren't diligent and tend to make mistakes that threaten our reputation.
